FIELD. AN AFTERNOON OF QUIET SPORT AT SHEEPS.

Diablo's shocking performance in the handloop at a mile and three-sixteenths was the distressing feature HEAD BAY. of an afternoon of quiet sport at Sheepshead Bay yeserday. To see the apple of his eye so badly beaten by a field of poor quality must have caused Mr. Langfeld many heart pangs. Is it possible that the colt, once so game, honest and generous, gets too much racing in his work? Or does he get too little? As he galloped down the stretch in his preliminary he was so full of spirit, carried himself with such dash and vigor and seemed so anxious for a race that few who saw him could refrain from backing him to win. In the paddock he was as frisky as a mule in a barley patch. Still, his greatest admirers could not help remarking that he was light in flesh. It was not necessary to use a microscope to count his back teeth. While summering at Saratoga he should have picked up at least 200 pounds, but it was painful to observe that he seemed no heavier than when he left Monmouth Park Racegoers have an affection for this two months ago. little colt and all are sorry to see him so sadly amiss.

In his race Diable pulled like a tugboat and was a full of running as a steam engine while kept under restraint, but when Bergen turned him loose and bade him go after Oriffamme he lest all ambition. Oriwon the race with the greatest ease, after trailing in the rear of the field for a mile. But Anderson came dangerously near losing the prize through fisqualification, as after going round his horses at the head of the homestretch, Oritiamme swerved in toward the rail, completely shutting out Castaway II and The Lioness, who were running strong and free Fortunately there was no collision and no complaint of foul. The wicked Niagara was rather surprised at the desperate hustling the indomitable Hamfiton gave him during this brief journey. Was he the same Niagara that ran on Wednesday and started an in cestigation by his reprehensible conduct? A mile and an eighth was entirely too far for the Niagara of Wednesday; a mile and three-sixteenths was not quite far enough for the Niagara of yesterday. Oriflamme beat him only half a length in fast time.

Aurania is the filly that fell over the rail at Mon nouth a year ago, and so seriously injured her shoulder that she was in hospital all the winter and did not reappear in public till a month ago. seems perfectly sound now, and has a flash of the speed of her great brother, the mighty Tremont, but there is not a more fickle and faint-hearted creature on the turf. She worked a mile in 1:42 1-4 at the brooklyn track on Thursday, and on the strength of that trial was made an overwhelming favorite in the first race, her owners and the public backing her as if she were an El Rio Rey of a Reclare. Murphy rode her and she finished second, a length and a half behind Cassius. That was about her proper place. Murphy is not riding in his best form these days. is an artist in the saddle, and in drawing a fine faish has no superior, but he seems to win with nothing just now but Kingston. Iceberg and the redoubtable Joshua were second to this point, Castaway third. Orifamme and Diablo trailed in the rear, keeping watchful eyes on each other. Diablo pulled Bergen out of the saddle at every stride as long as Bergen kept him under restraint, but as soon as his head was let lose he lost all ambition. Orifamme shot away from him on the unper turn, and coming up on the outside of the field, took the lead in the stretch, a furioup from the finish, Anderson looking first over one shoulder, then over the other, to see where danger turked. Hamflion brought up Niagara close to the rail and made a very bold and vigorous challenge, but Orifamme stalled it off handsomely, winning by half a length; Niagara second, the same distance before The Lioness.

THE ENTRIES FOR TO DAY'S RACES.

The Coney Island Jockey Club's programme for to day is one of remarkable merit. With the variety and excellence of the contests and the quality of th horses engaged, the six races will absorb the earnest attention of a big army of spectators. In the Omnium Handicap especially a brilliant field will go to the post. Firenzi is announced as a probable starter at 130 pounds. The distance, a mile and a furlong, is too short for the best display of her unrivalled staying powers, but she is now in such form and her class is so high that she ought to win, as she has no Kingston to meet in the Omnium. Spokane may run second if he starts. In his absence Princess Bowling may get the place.

Belvidere may win the first race, with Tea Tray second, although Climax, Irene and Moari must all be considered dangerous. In the Belles Stakes the flying Reclare is an almos certain winner, although she will carry 118 pounds and concede much weight to many of her competitors. Fairy Queen or Amazon will probably run second. Hindoocraft ought to win the third race, and Niagara may run second. The September Stakes, at a mile and three-quarters has been a race of great popularity ever since it was started. There are so few of these long-distance races left on the turf that those which remain have a peculiar charm. No one who saw the mighty Eard when he was a three-year-old, canter away from Linden, although The Bard was carrying 125 pour racing, will ever forget the public enthusiasm over the superb performance of the champion of that salvator must carry even more. He must take up 129 pounds to the 110 of Serrento J. A. B. All turfmen will be interested in noting this supreme test of the staying power and weight-carry ing ability of Mr. Haggin's chestnut son Prince Charlie. Diablo is mentioned as a possible starter with 129 pounds also. None of his races since he left Jerome Park just fles the slightest hope that he can get a place in the September Stakes with such a weight, and it would be best to keep him in the stable. Sorrento's staying powers have been proved, and, with his 110 pounds, I expect him to get second place. Salvator ought to win, however. His victory in the Realization Stakes proved beyond question that he could both carry heavy weight and stay. In the Realization he carried 125 pounds and won by a short head from Tenny, to whom he was conceding thirteen pounds. But Tenny was very badly ridden that day, while McLaughlin rode Salvator admirably as he will undoubtedly ride him admirably to-day. Salvator's task will be an even harder one than it was in the Realization, for he will carry four pounds more than he carried then, and will travel a furlong further, but I believe that he will be equal to the undertaking. The mile-and-three-quarters on the barf which will The mile-and-three-quarters of the close a fine day's sport will also gratify the rooted passion of the public for long-distance races, and will furnish a taking subject of comparison with the ranning of the September Stakes at the same distance. The chief difficulty was on account o on Emma for the 2:17 pace to have her drawn, as she cannot go well in the mud. This the judges would not allow, and "Dick" Wilson, her driver, under one pretext and another, did not bring her out for a long time, during which the crowd grew impatient. When at last a start was made Emma was unable to make any showing, and on the second heat finished behind the distance flag. TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD.

A STRANGE REMEDY ONCE IN REPUTE.

The present discussions respecting the newly found elixir of Dr. Brown-Sequard recall to the mind what has been said and done during the last four centuries in regard to the direct transfusion of the blood, and the kindred therapeutic methods that prescribed blood-drinking and blood-bathing for the use of cer

There many legends of masculine and feminion tyrants who, In ancient times, tried, like Tiberius and others, to recover strength and health through drinking or bathing in the blood of young boys and girls they caused to be put to death. But the first authenticated case of attempted blood transfusion was in 1492, the year America was discovered. After Pope Innocent VIII, who suffered from a "poverty of blood" that caused him frequent faints and a continuous drowsiness, had been declared incurable by his six physicians, a cardinal asked them whether he could not be saved by having the blood of some strong individual transfused into his veins. The doctors answere that this might happen, but that, on account of possible consequences, the Pope's consent should first be obtained. The Pontiff consented, after having been told that the operation would consist in introducing into his veins the blood of a healthy person through the medium of a thin tube which would pump out the blood and introduce it instantly and painlessly in the vein, because the puncture of the vein would be very light, and very small also would be the extremity of the tube introduced into it. A strong and healthy boy, of the Campagna Romana, or country around Rome, was picked out, but the operation could not be accomplished. The doctors were not used to it. They tried uselessly with a second subject. A third one, a big fellow looking like a gladiator, offered the tube, and thence into the vein of the Pope. But denly, so that air entered the opened vein. This is said to have caused his death. Such is the legend,

A few years later the same Cardinal who had advised this weird remedy for the Pope lay dying from hemorrhage which nothing could stop. a young Florentine boy to give him a portion of his blood, on payment of 4,000 scudi, or about $5,000, pretty large sum for that time, yet not too dear, if the tale is to be trusted, since the Cardinal recovered, and

But there are still some discrepancies respecting the best method of making the operation. Miguel Rossi, of Modena, was opposed to the school at hologna, which claimed that the patient must be bled before being submitted to the transfusion of blood. Professor Rossi declared this to be dangerous, and at best useless, except in case of poisoning. He claimed that the blood vessels are capable of containing more than double the usual quantity of blood. Later on discussion was rife also in regard to the method, then popular, of Juan Polic, who, instead of transferring the blood into the veins of the arm, as usually done, transfused it from the gritery of the arm of the blood-giver into the peritoneum of the patient. It was only between the years 1845 and 1840 that settled rules are practice were adopted by physicians in regard to blood transfiston, either in the veins or the pritoneum. There are medical statistics that go to show cures through this method, of 76 per cent in cases of hemoreham, lockplaw, phthisis, malartal fovers, never quite gone out, even in our days. But there

SENATOR CALL'S VIGOROUS REPLY.

REFUSING TO ACCEPT AN ENEMY'S TERMS FOR

A JOINT DEBATE-WHAT HE WILL DISCUSS. Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 6,-Wilkinson Call, senio United States Senator from Florida, has addressed an open letter to Colonel W. D. Chipley, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, declining the latter's proposition to meet him in joint dis-cussion before the people of Florida, as contained in Mr. Chipley's acceptance of Senator Call's chal-lenge to his alleged defamers. This original challenge was embedied in a long letter address d by Schatt Call to the Editor of "The Times-Union," on July 15. On August 18 Mr. Chipley accepted the challenge, and suggested fifty public discussions, to begin early in March, 1890. "The Times-Union" will to morrow publish Senator Call's reply. It is a document of 5,000 words, in which the Senator reviews the general challenge, but declines to accede to Mr. Chipley's personal propositions. He adds, however: "You and all others will be welcomed by me at every appointment which I shall make for public discussion and a fair proportion of time, both for opening and reply, will be allowed you and all others."

Mr. Call continues by reciting the circumstances in connection with the railroad lobby present in rallahassee during the last session of the Legislature, and charges that a "combine" was then and there made to defeat his re-election to the Senace there made to defeat his re-election to the Senace by the Legislature of 1891. "I am pleased," he says, "that you (Chipley) are ambitious to be the leader of this 'combine." Mr. Call goes on to say that at some future time he will make a detailed public statement of the private and personal interests represented in the "combine"; the amount of land grant claimed by them, the amount of S. I. Wales's ufficen per cent of indemnity land, the amount of iffeen per cent of the State's claim for reimbursement from the United States Treasury for Indian war expenses, and something like $100,000 for alleged lobbyist fees. To these he will add the expenses of the Tallahassee lobby, and the conclave at Tampa called for the purpose of determining ways and means to compass Mr. Call's defeat as United States Senator. "This," remarks Mr. Call, "will give directness to your (Chipley's) statement that you wish to appear in this canvass in the interest of the State of Florida."

Mr. Call then makes some personal remarks upon the relative popularity of himself and Chipley, and says his object in planning a canvass of the State is not to defend his own record, but to direct public attention to the extent of the evil practices in which he charges that Mr. Chipley and his associates are engaged. here made to defeat his re-election to the Senate
